TITLE: Change of Daylight Saving Time - North America

Dear Customer

The USA, Canada and certain other countries in North America have changed the dates for the start and end of Daylight Saving Time beginning 2007.

Depending on the platform, the Controller time may go out by an hour if the updates and patches are not applied. Daylight Savings has been brought forward to Sunday, 11th March 2007 in the affected countries. All systems not updated before then will not automatically change over on the 11th. The patches must be applied before this date.

As such, the operating system of all machines running the Access Control Software needs to be updated with the latest Windows patches from Microsoft (Windows Update). Please use the standard mechanisms available for updating Windows, or go to the Microsoft web site.

Please see the following URL for additional information from Microsoft relating to updating the various Windows platforms for DST:

Additionally, patches for the Java Runtime Environment (JRE) must be downloaded and installed. The URL below gives download links for the JRE patches for the various products:
